

Professional Licensure and Certification Information

UMass Lowell cannot confirm whether or not its programs meet the requirements for professional licensure or certification outside the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Students who are enrolled in programs that require licensure should speak to their program advisor to ensure they have been properly advised about licensure and certification requirements.

Requirements for professional licensure and certification vary from state to state. Becoming licensed or certified in one state does not mean your license or certification will automatically be valid in another state.

For information about licensure and certification in the state you are interested in practicing in, please contact the appropriate state licensing or higher education board.
